

Abstract

A black matrix can be formed by thermal transfer on a receptor substrate for use, for example, in a display application. This black matrix can be used, for example, as a color filter black matrix or a TFT (thin film transistor) black matrix to 5 provide contrast and/or to separate adjacent electrically-conducting components.